

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Do employees feel invested in their company's mission and its success???

Look for the invisible:

- Is there a lack of collaboration, a lack of over communication and declining response times?
- Are deadlines being missed and meetings more often starting late?
- If you start hearing the word "trust" it can indicate your people coming from a place of fear rather than faith ...
- Do not just look at the revenue or profits ... but notice if there's a lack of consistency and follow through.

Running an employee engagement survey doesn't just measure how happy employees are - it measures how dedicated they are to the mission and outcome of your company. Measuring employee engagement, then, is even more crucial: It's an important indicator of the health of your business and a good way to spot areas for improvement.

How are you optimizing employee engagement as part of your organisation's risk management strategy?
